About the Author:

The DaDim creative group was founded in 2015, when the artists Dasha Delone and Dima Goryachkin made a collaborative project which was exhibited at the Vadim Sidur Museum in Moscow in 2016. Before the group official announcement was made, the artists worked and exhibited together for many years, developing a common style and philosophical thought.

At present time, the artists travel a lot and exhibit around the world, which makes them "Very international artists," as said by Simon Hewitt, art critic and specialist in Russian art. The group works in very different techniques ranging from classical - painting, engraving and ceramics to metal sculpture and experimental video, later combining these works into general installations and large projects.
