Description:

THIS ARTWORK WAS INSPIRED BY THE INDIGENOUS LEGEND OF COBRA GRANDE, THE MYTH OF EVENINGS BIRTH. I HAD A PREVIOUS ARTWORK BUT DECIDED THAT THE FRAGMENTS LOOKED BETTER, SO I CUT SQUARES OUT OF THE ARTWORK AND SEWED BACK TOGETHER IN A BETTER MORE INTERESTING AESTHETIC PIECE.

About the Author:

Patricia Ariane lives and works in São Paulo, Brazil. Her artistic practice can be described as the pictorial representation of her daily extrasensory perceptions combined with the use of flat color and influences of movements such as Figurativism, Abstract Expressionism and Pop Art. Each completed artwork is the result of a initial thought, developed through an unrecognized physical sense, intuition. Being each intuitive tought non-verbal, painting becomes the communication mediator for an experience of cyclical transfer between author and viewer. The artist's fanciful perspectives carry a sweeping impulse, where the artist hopes to convey a little of herself and embrace some of the other through the act of contemplation.

Such act becomes a bridge for an amplified collective conscious space, where the artist's intuitive creations expands by connecting the subconscious of the artist with the subconscious of the viewer, giving birth to what the artists call "the creative imagination" and making the content of the work a field of limitless possibilities

Her works of art are present in private collections around the world, in countries like Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, Canada and the United States.
